Homeless Tossed Back And Forth

A group of 116 Rumanian Jews was confined in the railroad station in the Austrian frontier village of Loipersbach after having spent the three previous days and nights dodging traffic on a railroad bridge leading from Hungary to Austria. What has happened to them is typical of the fate not only of Jewish refugees but of refugees generally in Central Europe.

This group and some fifty other Jews who had fled from hunger conditions in Rumania into Hungary were forced by Hungarian frontier guards to cross the Austrian frontier at Rohrbach, in Burgenland. The Russian kommandatura of the district ordered the Burgenland frontier guard to send the refugees back. By this time fifty had been brought to Vienna by the Committee for Refugee Jews, but when trucks were sent to bring the others the Russians confiscated the vehicles and arrested the drivers.

When the case was brought by the Austrian Ministry of the Interior to the attention of the Russian authorities in Vienna, they ordered the trucks returned and promised to ask the Russian authorities in Budapest to prevent further incursions of refugees. However, the Russians at Vienna insisted on returning to Hungary those refugees who had already arrived.

Then the Hungarian frontier guards refused to readmit the refugees. The Austrian frontier watchers, in their turn, declined to permit the refugees to cross the Loipersbach railroad bridge. There they entered

Pipe Water Into Arid Negev

Steel pipes that London used in fighting the Blitz now are carrying a newly found water supply to Jewish pioneer settlements in the arid and half-desolate Negev, the grain-growing southern part of Palestine.

Experimental pumping began recently, and drinking water, with a small surplus for irrigation, will soon be flowing to four of the sixteen Jewish settlements in the area. Additional settlements could be supplied if the Palestine Government did not oppose the laying of more pipe, the Zionist Agricultural Workers Organization has been told by its executive secretary, Abraham Harzfeld.

Negotiations for extension of the pipeline are continuing between the Jewish Agency for Palestine and Government departments. The Government's refusal of permission for further work has not been explained publicly.

"The obvious intention is, of course, to hamper Jews in striking roots in the Negev," the Hebrew newspaper Haboker asserted. The Negev is being reserved, the newspaper charged, for use as a British military base.

Land holdings of the Jewish National Fund in Negev now amount to 25,000 acres. For three years the Jewish Agency's engineers have been searching for water to supply the area. They finally brought in two deep wells on the site of the new Jewish settlement of Nir Am, northeast of the Arab town of Gaza, on the Mediterranean coast.

The water was the first found in the area, and the Jewish Agency promptly laid out a $1,500,000 project to deliver a supply to the Jewish settlement. A seventy-five-mile pipeline, using six-inch [illegible]

Anti-Nazi Press Resents Actor Verdict

The noted German actor, Werner Krauss, has been cleared by a German tribunal in Stuttgart and the verdict has aroused active public resentment in the anti-Nazi press in Berlin.

During the Nazi regime he played four rôles in a film, "Jew Suess," based on a distortion of Lion Feuchtwanger's novel. He belonged to the Nazi Kultursenat and was a leading figure in the Nazi Chamber for the Theatre and Film.

The Berlin Abend, an American-licensed paper, in an article by a well known journalist, S. S. von Varady, wonders why Krauss, a Berliner, took up temporary residence in Stuttgart for denazification. He implies strongly that the reason was to find a place where positive evidence against him would not be readily available and the approval of all four powers would not be required, as in Berlin. While Stuttgart is not far from Berlin by normal standards, travel by Germans these days involves so many complications that it might as well be in another country.

Krauss' defense of his Jew-baiting rôles in the film was that he sought to play them to avoid their being turned by some anti-Semite into really provocative interpretations. The fact remains, as Europeans of the period well know, that Herr Feuchtwanger's novel was so distorted by the Nazis as to become a complete anti-Semitic vehicle and that vicious pogroms followed virtually every showing of it, says the New York Times. Herr Varady said:

"'Jew Suess' was supposed to be proof that [illegible] always been the lowest pr[illegible] it

th[illegible] company in [illegible]
ma[illegible]o make one anti-Semitic film [illegible] that one had to have a certain amount of principle to avoid that "honorable" order. German producers and actors found smart excuses. They knew how much it meant. Only Werner Krauss did not know."

Kristina Soederbom, a famous movie actress, will make her stage début under British auspices in Hamburg in Patrick Hamilton's "Gaslight." She is the wife of Veit Harlan, who produced "Jew Suess" and many other Nazi propaganda films. He and his wife are known as leaders of Nazi "art."

Offers Plan For Minority Rights

Justice Meier Steinbrink, of the New York State Supreme Court, proposed at the Washington convention of Bnai Brith a five-point legislative program for preventing discrimination against minority groups, and for improving the enforcement of civil rights laws.

His proposal of federal and state legislation was made before 400 delegates of the national Jewish service organization who represent its branches throughout the United States, in Canada, Great Britain, Europe and Palestine.

Justice Steinbrink's program made these suggestions:

1. Legislation against racial and religious discrimination in employment.
2. Similar legislation against discrimination in higher education and a complete repudiation of "quota" systems in colleges and universities.
3. Legislation to protect civil rights of minority groups.
4. Legislation against restrictive covenants in real estate deeds.
5. Legislation making mandatory the disclosure of the origins of defamatory literature.

Justice Steinbrink said he realized that legislation was not a panacea, for while it protected the individual, it did not eradicate prejudice. Discrimination, he added, would be eliminated only "when the social climate is changed through education." Speaking as national chairman of the Anti-Defamation League of Bnai Brith, he added:

"Such legislation is necessary if the basic American concept of equality of opportunity is to be more than empty phrases. We favor the approach of such proposals as the Ives-Chavez bill now pending in Congress by Senator Irving H. Ives, Republican, of New York.

Truman Urges U.S. Legislate To Admit DP

The resettlement of displaced Europeans is an international problem, President Truman said, and its solution can be attained only through international cooperation. He repeated that the United States must accept its share of refugees when international cooperation is finally agreed on.

Mr. Truman conceded, in reply to a question at his news conference, that results from his directive of Dec. 22, 1945, when he instructed the State Department to fill all legal immigration quotas from the countries of northern Europe, had not been satisfactory. He added that further legislation would be needed to enable its share of the refugees to be resettled.

The figure of 39,000 was mentioned in his 1945 directive as a possible total of immigrants who could be allowed, under existing law, to enter the United States during the succeeding year. Actually, according to the State Department's latest figures, some 18,000 immigration visas were issued in northern Europe between March 1, 1946, when the consular offices began to function, and March 1, 1947.

Part of the apparent discrepancy is attributed to the President's inclusion of a quota of 26,000 for Germany. Few Germans are in a position to emigrate, and fewer still would be accepted. Most displaced persons in Germany at present are said to be refugees from other countries.

Under existing law the country of birth determines to which quota an applicant's request must be allotted. The [illegible] of immigra[illegible]

Forward Celebrates 50th Anniversary

The fiftieth anniversary of The Jewish Daily Forward, a non-profit newspaper published in Yiddish, dedicated to the Americanization of the immigrant, social democracy and liberalism, was celebrated in Madison Square Garden, New York. The meeting was arranged by a hundred labor unions, the Workmen's Circle, a fraternal order and a number of organizations that were founded on the city's East Side.

Speakers and messages lauded the contributions made to social and civic progress by The Forward and its veteran editor, Abraham Cahan. Mr. Cahan, 87 years old and editor of the Forward since its founding, was guest of honor.

The speakers included Mayor O'Dwyer; William Green, presi-

New Group Is Socialist, Anti-Zionist

A Socialist, anti-Zionist Jewish world organization composed of Jews of seventeen countries, including Palestine, is in the making, authoritative sources said in London, England.

The organization, to be patterned after the Second International, will have the backing of prominent Jewish labor union quarters in the United States, the sources said.

(The Second, or Socialist, International was founded in 1889 with headquarters in London. It excludes Communists, opposes militarism and seeks to attain its ends by reason rather than force.)

The foundation of the organization was laid at a conference in Brussels, attended by sixty delegates representing Jews of Can-

The ice is still THIN!

Even though the "Danger" signs of Inflation can be taken down now, they have to be replaced with signs reading, "Proceed With Caution." The ice is still too thin for any Canadian to tell himself, "Now, at last, I can go ahead and buy everything I want."

We can't—yet. But we can proceed to enjoy—in moderation—many of the goods and services which were so long in short supply. These good things are ours at moderate prices now because we were moderate in our demands before.

Today, Canadians can indeed be proud of one of this country's finest possessions, which is, as The House of Seagram has long contended, this nation's policy of moderation in all things—in its thinking, in its buying and in its personal habits.

Today we Live in a Greater Canada

Not a dream of Present Fact!

TODAY Canadian manufacturing has reached record peacetime heights. It has gone far beyond anything attained in pre-war years. During the war we became the world's fourth industrial nation. Now, in peacetime production again, over 980,000 Canadians are employed in manufacturing—compared to 570,000 in mid-1939. And average pay has more than doubled!

CHARLES McNELLEN, in the years 1920 to 1924 was driving a truck for a Toronto electrotyping firm. During this time he studied the business and was appointed as salesman for the same company from the latter part of 1924 until April, 1931. His enthusiasm inspired other men who agreed to assist him in the founding of his own business. Today he is President of "Bomac"—one of the largest electrotyping and engraving companies in Canada.

MR. McNELLEN says, "Canada has been good to me. She will prove the same to those young Canadians who are ready to take advantage of the vastly increased opportunities she offers today. Here, within our own country, in every field of endeavour, successful careers await the talented and ambitious."

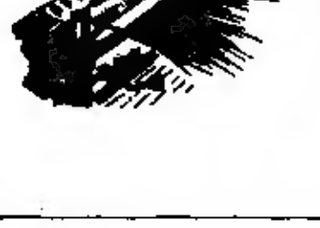
For years pulp and paper ranked as Canada's most important peacetime industry—judged by wages paid, production value and exports. It is greater than ever today—with a 48% increase in employment over 1939.

Spurred by war demands, Canada became the fourth steel producer of the United Nations and manufacture of iron and steel products became the industry employing most Canadians. Today there are more than twice as many of us engaged in this industry as before the war.



The textile industry is our other great manufacturing employer. It, too, tremendously increased its output to meet war needs. Today in it, too, far greater numbers of Canadians are employed than in 1939.

People Who Helped The Jews Are In Need Of Help

A message received at the national headquarters of the Canadian Relief To Greece Appeal from Victor Elizer, director of the Jewish community in Athens, thanks the people of Canada for their generosity in supplying food, clothes, and medicine to residents of the Jewish community in that city. Mr. Elizer's message reads in part:

"The Jewish community of Athens wishes to express the sincere thanks and appreciation of all its members for the help the Canadian people have given to [illegible] possessions have been [illegible]. We pray that the present campaign for Canadian Relief To Greece will be greatly supported by all races in Canada, so as to give as much help as possible to the people here who are in dire need of assistance."

Many Jewish people found refuge in Greece and Greek families have given shelter to a large number of Jewish people often at the risk of their own lives. In Greece the Jewish people are part of the Greek nation and are given the same privilege and liberties. In the past the Greek War Relief Fund has offered its facilities to different Jewish organizations in Canada who wished to send clothing and other relief supplies to their own people in Greece.

HANDS AT WORK . . .
LEARNING MOTOR VEHICLE REPAIR

ONTARIO'S progress and prosperity are directly dependent on her ability to produce goods in sufficient volume to meet domestic needs and the demands of world markets. To keep production lines moving requires thousands of vehicles, powered by gasoline and diesel engines . . and these vehicles must be maintained in first-class condition. Skilled maintenance men and operators are needed to keep a smooth and increasing flow of raw materials moving to industry . . . to move workers to their jobs . . . to speed produce to market. For those who master such skilled occupations higher wages, job security and better working conditions are within easier reach.

Today, through the plan sponsored by the Department of Veterans' Affairs and other agencies, thousands of young workers are being trained to meet the needs of motor vehicle trades and other industrial needs of the province. Graduates of these rehabilitation courses are now ready to take their places in Ontario's industry. Available to you are veterans, well started on the road to skilled motor trades such as motor mechanics, service management, service station operation, diesel mechanics and operation. Seek them out with confidence. They are your future craftsmen.

OFFERS PLAN

"We would recommend, however, that consideration be given to extend the bill to include employers, who, though not in interstate or foreign commerce, are engaged in the performance of Federal contracts. And we further urge the adoption of corresponding statewide statutes and local laws along the lines of the New York State law against discrimination."

Justice Steinbrink referred to the controversy over the question of "curbing scurrilous hate publications" as one involving the area of freedom of speech. He stated the league "is not convinced that an effective statute can be drawn to curb the evil of group libel that will not also be a threat to freedom of bona fide discussion of public questions."

The League, however, the jurist added, did favor the enactment of Federal and State statutes "which would require such defamatory publications to disclose the names and addresses of the persons responsible for the publication and dissemination of such matter."

From Palestine came Justice Gad Frumkin, of the Palestine Supreme Court, with a plea that all elements of Jewry unite to save the survivors of Nazi persecution in Europe. He also proposed the creation of a pilgrimage youth movement whereby American youths of Jewish descent would visit Palestine for a year or less. Such pilgrimages, he said, would accomplish far more than propaganda and education toward bridging "the gulf between the different sections of Jewry."

A report on anti-Semitism in England was made by H. Gordon Liverman, British jurist and industrialist, and past president of Bnai Brith in England. He described anti-Semitic activity which he said "only applies to a certain section, even if that section is the wealthiest and most influential."

"To the generality of the Anglo-Jewish community," Mr. Liverman added, "these restrictions play a small part—not even when they go on a holiday, because restrictions are not to be found except in a very few—and then only third rate —hotels."

TRUMAN URGES

most of the 18,000 visas granted.

There have been other obstacles, including administrative disputes with the British Government. The State Department is discussing with the British Embassy the British authorities' refusal to permit the IRO to operate in their zone of Germany.

Another minor irritation was aired when Maj. Gen. Lowell W. Rooks, Director General of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration denied British charges that the UNRRA was facilitating the illegal entry of immigrants into Italy. He pointed out that his organization's responsibility was to provide assistance to eligible displaced persons who appear at its camps and that it could not control their movements before they got there.

"The matter of frontier control and internal movement rests in the hands of the occupying authorities and the responsible Government," he said. "In this connection also (the) UNRRA advises the British Government that, should the Government of Italy institute a system of frontier control, (the) UNRRA would cooperate by informing the proper Italian authorities of any displaced persons arriving at camps without the necessary entry papers."

NEW GROUP

ada, the United States, Great Britain, Australia, Argentina, Mexico, Belgium, Holland, Sweden, Switzerland, Austria, Germany, Italy, Poland, France and Palestine. Rumanian Jewry also expressed a desire to co-operate, but was unable to send delegates, the sources said.

Poland's delegate was Dr. Michael Szuldenfrei, Socialist member of the Warsaw Parliament and legal adviser to the Polish Premier. Two Palestine trade unionists also attended and voted with the rest of the delegates for a resolution sharply condemning not only Jewish extremists, but the Zionist movement in general.

The conference elected a committee which was said to be holding sessions in Paris to work out details for formation of the anti-Zionist organization.

A spokesman of the movement in London said the central secretariat will be in New York, but that there also will be a European office. He said the organization would establish friendly contact with the British Labor party, which sent a message of greetings to the Brussels conference, and with other Socialist parties.

FORWARD

dent of the American Federation of Labor; David Dubinsky, president of the International Ladies Garment Workers Union; Alexander Kahn, manager of The Forward who succeeded the late B. Charney Vladeck; Ephin H. Jeshurin, president of the Workmen's Circle; and Adolph Held, president of the Forward Association, who presided.

The Mayor pointed to the achievements of The Forward and its editor in the Americanization and welfare of Jewish immigrants.

Congratulatory messages were received from President Truman, Léon Blum, Socialist leader and twice premier of France; former Governor Herbert H. Lehman; Henry Morgenthau, Jr., former Secretary of the Treasury; Edward M. Warburg, and others.

Mr. Cahan described The Forward as the property of a movement committed to help Jewish workers and humanity in the best possible sense.

Mr. Kahn stressed that during the last thirty years, the newspaper had been consistently fighting the Communists and that it fought them when it was alone, with small means, against "the unlimited resources poured into the U.S. through secret channels."

Mr. Held asserted that Americanization work carried on by The Forward was effective and that it was the immigrant groups who managed to build up the best machinery for strike prevention.

PIPE WATER

tish pipe served during the war as additional water mains for the firefighters of London.

Pipe-laying started in December and a little more than twenty miles was completed. An additional thirty-five miles, in two branches, will be laid if permission is obtained. Permission is required because the pipe runs mainly along the rights of way of public roads.

A share in the water has been offered to Arab communities on the route, but there has not yet been a general acceptance. Arab nationalists are opposed to accepting the water, for fear that it will give the appearance of sanctioning a project that assists Jewish colonization in what is now overwhelmingly Arab territory.

The Arabs have refused to accept the water despite the fact that the Negev this year has had its most disastrous drought in some eighty years. A majority of the Negev's Bedouin population of shepherds and grain farmers were forced to trek northward in search of water and cattle feed.

The first Jewish school since 1938 opened in Vienna.

REMOVE "MERCHANT OF VENICE"

Shakespeare's "Merchant of Venice" has been taken off the list of required reading for Haverhill, Mass., high school students at the request of a rabbi.

Protesting that the book caused Jewish students "much discomfort and self consciousness." Rabbi Abraham I. Jacobson told the school committee: "The character of Shylock is an exaggerated distortion of Jewish attitudes and conduct."

Mayor Albert W. Glynn agreed, saying he did not think the book helped "friendly relations."

"Sometimes when people censure me,
I tell them without rancor
That for what it cost me to be free,
I might have had an author."

Homelessness is the big word on the mind of the Jews in sympathy with the condition of thousands of their people overseas as the Canadian Jewish Congress convention takes place in Montreal over the next few days. This was apparent in the brief presented by the Congress to the Standing Committee on Immigration and Labour of the Senate of Canada on May 7.

Through this Congress brief the Jews of Canada made known their views on the subject of immigration. They believe that it would be of benefit to the interests of the country, economically, socially, and morally to liberalize present laws and make them over because they are too restrictive.

The Jewish displaced persons who have survived the brutalities of Nazism are excellent hardy stock. That they have not been guilty of war crimes or of collaboration; their political views are not antipathetic to Canadianism; it is their opposition to Communist influence which makes them voluntary exiles, was advanced by the special pleaders of the Congress. Their standard of education, initiative, and vocational training is very high, and during the past year they have been given training for skills and trades which were selected for usefulness in such countries as Canada. To admit such people the press of the country favors a liberalized immigration policy.

It is well known that immigrants who have been admitted to Canada in recent years have repaid the dominion richly in peace and in war. But the number of Jewish admissions is small, nevertheless. Out of the first 2,900 to come here only three were Jews among Polish soldiers. Others, Jews in the Polish army, who also qualified, were not given the opportunity of presenting themselves before the Canadian officers who were making the selection. The entry of farm hands, lumbermen, and fishermen does not contribute to the problem of Jewish displaced persons.

Close kin are still barred from Canada under regulations dealing with the admission of relatives and these should be liberalized to provide for immediate relatives up to and including first cousins and their children. More than that, sponsorship which goes beyond mere guarantees that the immigrant will not become a public charge and meets the economic realities here should make possible amendments permitting Canadians to bring in immigrants whom they can settle even if they are not close kin.

In the Jewish displaced persons problem there is an excellent opportunity for Canada to secure fine, prospective citizens, as well as there is a specific responsibility which can only be met in the formulation of immigration policy. In the past when the government granted permission to certain specific numbers of Jewish settlers, through arrangement with Jewish community leaders, such projects turned out successfully.

The brief which was submitted for the Canadian Jewish Congress by Michael Garber, K.C., said:

"We urge that among other steps the government agree to the admission of a reasonable number of Jews from Europe upon carefully agreed conservative terms. Our organization is prepared to carry out such conditions carefully with a full sense of responsibility not only toward these settlers but towards our country as a whole. Arrangements could be made for the training overseas of these settlers in skills needed in this country and for a carefully prepared course of indoctrination of Canadianism. Nor need this Committee take undue responsibility in the question of transport. We have not any doubt that special arrangements could be made to bring these people over without affecting the flow of settlers from Britain. Even if for any reason these men and women could not be brought to this dominion at once and if they should need to await in Europe for a time, the very knowledge that the Canadian Government is acting in its own traditions for the admission of those seeking new homes in freedom and in human dignity, will send a ray of light in a world which is darkening from fear that the professors of fine ideals are slow to live up to them insofar as the stranger outside the gate is concerned."

In those words the Canadian Jewish Congress spoke well for each member of the community. Close to the heart of every Jew is the urgent wish that Canada will make good its assurances to do its share toward the displaced persons problem and assume moral leadership by offering a home to a number of the homeless quickly. Time is a vital element in this deteriorating situation.

UNRRA is going out of existence on the last day of June and the whole problem of the uprooted will be magnified. The Joint Distribution Committee sees ahead a critical situation which will require greatly increased voluntary aid. Thousands face homelessness, hunger, and death, for the worst is yet to come. The Jews here in Canada who have been lucky enough to escape the terror and heartache will need to be prepared to give increasingly. Meanwhile they hope and pray for a generous contribution by governments toward the tragic need of many fine people for a haven and a useful life, the only real solution. t.l.e.
